The Bill of Rights as enshrined in our Constitution, Chapter 2, Section 17, states that, “everyone has the right, peacefully and unarmed, to assemble, to demonstrate, to picket and to present petitions.” Nurses are the biggest group of health professionals, who are next to the patient and often the only available health worker to the citizenry, with a greater responsibility to improve the health of the population as well as to contribute towards achievement of the global development goals. However, they are often ignored or excluded in important policy decisions and benefits. It is in this respect that nurses chose to march to highlight their plight which seems to be ignored and undermined by the powers that be. Enough is Enough !!!!!!!!!!!!!
